

THE CENTRE FOR FAMILY RESEARCH AND EVALUATION (CFRE) IS A COLLABORATIVE APPLIED RESEARCH CENTRE LOCATED WITHIN DRUMMOND STREET SERVICES, AN INNOVATIVE COMMUNITY SERVICES ORGANISATION.

CFRE work with different levels of government and not for profit agencies across Australia to improve policy and programs that impact health and wellbeing of children, families and communities. By helping service delivery agencies and policy makers to use evidence, empower their communities and improve their services and programs, we believe that the outcomes for children, families and communities across Australia will improve.

CFRE have established a collaborative team of consultants and research experts with experience across a range of professional backgrounds, disciplines and content areas. This allows us to deliver a range of services including:

- » Evaluation and research projects. We use a collaborative approach to develop evaluation projects and methods that are useful and fit for purpose.
- » Program design. CFRE supports agencies and project teams to design, develop and improve their programs with the latest thinking and evidence in behaviour change.
- » Capacity building. We provide training, mentoring and group facilitation for organisations and program staff to improve their work to develop programs, evaluate their impact and plan strategically to meet the needs of their communities.
